February TV

We are already one month into 2023 and usually February is award season for things in TV, movies and music. The Golden Globes happened earlier in January. The Grammys will be held February 5th. With Beyoncé, Adele and Harry Styles all looking to take home multiple Grammys. The Academy Awards will be held March 12th. Some of the movies looking for multiple Oscars include, Everything Everywhere All at Once, The Banshees of Inisherin, and Elvis.

For sports, the NBA All-Star weekend will be held in Salt Lake City February 17th-19th. Giannis was selected as a starter and the captain for the Eastern Conference team. He and LeBron James, The Western Conference captain, will be picking their teams live shortly before the game. The NHL All-Star game will be held in Miami on February 4th.

Lastly, of course, the Super Bowl will be held in Arizona on February, 12th. It has been a pretty chalky playoffs with both 1 seeds advancing to the Super Bowl. The Philadelphia Eagles are looking for their second championship in six years. The Kansas City Chiefs are looking for their second in four years, and third overall. The halftime performance will be Rihanna who hasn't released an album since 2016, but has plenty of hit songs.

Please enjoy the award shows and sports in February!

A Message From Jay

Hello, and welcome to February!

We finally got a big snowstorm last weekend and some bitter cold to go along with it for the rest of this week. The long-range forecast looks better for us.

My wife, Sara and I spent New Year's Eve weekend up at our good friend's cottage in Tomahawk, WI. We had four couples up there for the weekend and went out for a tasty fish fry on Friday night and did some snowshoeing on Lake Nokomis on Saturday and then celebrated New Year's Eve! No polar plunge this year!

We had a big group go to the Marquette University men's basketball game in early January, and saw them beat Georgetown. We had a super fun day!

We also celebrated my stepdad's 90th birthday on January 15!

A group of about 10 of us guys go up to Madison every winter to watch the Badger women's hockey team, because one of my friends knows the goalie coach for the team. We saw a good game, and had a lot of fun as well! I saw the Milwaukee Bucks win two games in January as well, on MLK day with my son Zach and Sunday, January 29 with Sara. I guess you could say I got my sports fix for the month even with the Packers missing the playoffs.

Be well,
Jay
