STRAWBERRY JALAPENO MARGARITA

- 1 teaspoon coarse salt
- 1 lime wedge
- 2 cups ice, or as needed
- 3 large strawberries, sliced
- 3 slices fresh jalapeno
- 2 fluid ounces silver tequila
- 1 fluid ounce triple sec
- 1 fluid ounce lime juice
- 3/4 ounce simple syrup

Directions

1. Sprinkle salt onto a plate. Moisten the rim of a glass with lime wedge. Press the moistened rim into the salt. Fill the glass with ice.
2. Fill a cocktail shaker with jalapeno slices and strawberries, reserving 1 slice of strawberry for garnish. Use a muddler to crush the jalapeno and strawberries to release their juices. Add tequila, triple sec, lime juice and simple syrup to the shaker and add 1 cup of ice. Seal and shake vigorously until outside is frosted, 10 to 15 seconds.
3. Strain margarita into the glass and garnish with remaining strawberry slice, if desired.

A Message From Jay

Hello and welcome to May!

It looks like we're starting off the month with some cooler temperatures. This past weekend, my wife Sara and I flew out to Fairfax, VA to see my daughter Becky, son-in-law Cole, and our grandson Van, who turned one year old last Friday. He's not quite able to walk yet, but he can stand for a while and walk around tables using his hands to guide him. We got him a very small trike that he is able to scoot around on as well. Van is very social and likes to be in the action and make sure that people are watching him play or scoot around or eat or anything else that he's doing.

Saturday Becky and Cole had a nice birthday party for Van that a lot of their friends came to celebrate along with Cole's parents as well. I grilled out brats and hotdogs for the party. We also brought Wisconsin cheese curds, and some Hungarian smoked sausage from home.

On Sunday morning, we went to church and witnessed Van being baptized. The church also put on a nice reception after the service so that everyone could congratulate Becky and Cole and Van. We went for a delicious brunch with Cole's parents to celebrate Van's baptism after that. We took some nice walks throughout the weekend and went to the park down the street as well. It was a special weekend that we got to share with Becky, Cole and Van. We can't wait to see them again! Have a great month!

Be well,
Jay
